

Add a Service Window

Tool Crib

Many companies have found using wire partitions to organize their tool rooms has paid dividends in return. When a maintenance person needs a tool to work on equipment in the plant, they go to the tool crib and sign out the tool they need. Many tool cribs also have a service window so the plant personnel do not have to enter into the actual tool crib.

Peace of Mind

With a designated, secure area to store tools and equipment, you no longer worry about who has what tool, or where tools have been misplaced.

When someone needs a tool, it can be checked out and returned.